

Hanna Barbera Cartoons-Administration Offices Hollywood, California

This 5,700 square foot office interior is comprised of a reception area, executive conference room, executive reception area and executive offices for a cartoon animation company. The president of the company requested a space that would reflect the fun, colorful and energetic qualities of the cartoons they produce, while at the same time maintaining an atmosphere appropriate for a corporate office. A display system was designed and integrated throughout the new offices to allow for the flexible and secure presentation of original cartoon artwork, cels and merchandise that the company produced. Designed by Christopher Coe while Partner and Design Principal of COE Design Architecture.
