

Miller Boyett Productions
Burbank, California

This 10,500 square foot encompassed the complete exterior and interior renovation of a 1930, two-story office building on the lot of a major motion picture and television studio. The clients are a highly successful team of television and movie producers. The program includes reception lobbies, executive and assistant offices with custom-designed workstations, conference rooms, video screening room and kitchen. The refined and restrained design aesthetic of the project is contemporary, yet tempered by the extensive use of natural wood. Display spaces throughout the project have been integrated to allow for the mounting of the client’s extensive art and memorabilia collection. Designed by Christopher Coe while Partner and Design Principal of COE Design Architecture.

